

THE ICONOCLAST

VOL 2, SUMMER 2

This is the fabulous second summer edition, and if you have been lucky enough to obtain a copy of this, then you are just plain lucky...write to us and let us know what you think....the address is listed on page 2 (two). We will be advertising in the campus center for the fall semester and will actually have an official meeting for all those of you who would like to submit stuff. (woohoo! this is a real cause for excitement). It doesn't look like it sometimes, but people actually do like us. So should you--it's the in thing to do--"it's money!"

Obscure similarities between 20's writers and A. A Milne by Andrea Chrisman here's a little doozy i wrote for my english 102 class; if you know both of these vastly divergent texts, you might get a kick out of how i made a connection between the two just so that i could write about winnie the pooh...

In the Great Gatsby, Fitzgerald illustrates a rather common theme of society attempting to destroy purity of intention with superficiality and corruption. Society wishes to stamp out that which differs from its conventional members even in the slightest, because it is a threat to "the flock." In The House At Pooh Corner, Rabbit is the embodiment of Fitzgerald's corrupt society. Rabbit is the only Pooh character which coaxes the members of his "society" to eliminate that which does not conform, just as Gatsby's world tries to remove him because he is unusual.

In the story "In Which Tigger Is Unbounced," Rabbit's intention is to lose Tigger in the forest in order to make Tigger so sorry that he will change his bouncing ways, as it is divergent behaviour to bounce others. Rabbit refuses to acknowledge that this is a quality in Tigger that cannot be changed because it is inherent in this tiger's nature. Rabbit's only goal is conformity to his own set standards. James Gatz is also a different natured person in his society, and the people within want to change his qualities to suit the needs of the elite. Gatsby, himself, does not give audience to the attenders of his parties. He doesn't even invite them, they simply come to take advantage of him, and talk about him behind his back. James is finally thwarted by Tom Buchanan, who attempts to destroy him by belittling his parties and eliminating all hopes in James to regain his true love by moving Daisy to another city.

They do not destroy Gatsby's integrity however, just as Tigger finds his way quickly out of the forest. Instead, both characters make their antagonists look foolish. Tigger must go find Rabbit in the forest, because it is Rabbit who finds himself lost, and Gatsby brings to light the superficial in all his acquaintances when, at his funeral, only his father arrives to pay respects. All the party go-ers hide in their own egos, and whisper lies to each other, about the true nature of his death, and the accident which his car caused.

The Papal Decree of the Week

(brought to you this week by substitute Rabbi Mordecai Levertov)

Thou shalt keep thy holy diamond windows open! --oh, and thou shalt also send thy pepsi points to Shawn Sullivan c/o P.O. Box 2133, Cinnaminson, NJ 08077 so that he may obtain the Holy Skateboard & Handgrenade from the Pepsi points catalogue.

BLUE IN GREEN

Breakfast, lunch & coffee

7 N. Third Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106
215 928-5880

STEVE-THE HOT DOG MAN

Condemned by the gods to poverty.
Resident Greek scholar at Rutgers and a trained professional.

Heaven's Gate (A good idea whose time has come!) by Noam Choseed Lately I've been watching the sad shocking news about the California mass suicides and frankly, I'm appalled. Couldn't they have gotten more members? After all, there have to be thousands of suicidal trekkies with an X-files jones who want to reach the next level. In this world of overpopulation and environmental strife we need to thin out the herd. We need to form a new cult. One which gets the job done. A quick fix fill in the blank cause cult that gets the mass suicide out of the way quickly so that we can have a high turnover. Maybe we could make the mass suicide part of the initiation ritual. But first make sure that the memebers sign away all their stuff. Some people may be shocked by this modest proposal, but let's face it, if we don't do it, some dangerous cult or militia will probably get them and they'll still die, but more likely than not, they'll take a few of us down, too. Let's face it, the last thing this planet needs is the kind of people who would join a death cult. These are the lemmings, folks. They're born to die--let's help. This week only! Special introductory offer: free applesauce when you sign over all of your worldly possessions--call today!--> 1-1800-LEMMING! Let's lead 'em off that cliff!

Four Books On A Desk

by Jonathan Faszczuk

Blue on top of brown
on top of white
on top of white

A moment passes
The silence helps
So does a peering stare

Now
small onn top of bigger on top of bigger on top of b i g g e s t

Look again

Could it be?

Brown underneath the blue on top of two white ones!

motionless
kinetic potential full

Dedicated follower of Fashion

by Jonathan Faszczuk

And where are you going?
Gutier
Armani

do you know?

Is it a meeting?
a hearing?
a presentation?
or a workshop?

Are you with God?
Is salvation the destination?
Or do you not have the time for that?
Prioritize, Prioritize

And you?
Hard-hat
Carhart
Dickies

Do you know your direction?

Is it the lunch break?
smoke-break?
the weekend?
or happy-hour?

And persecutor,
Where am I to go?
Where the pen goes?
Where the wind blows?
Where my mind shows?

irish penance by andrea chrisman scattered threads of the girl frayed at random ends she enters life through a shirt sleeve struggling and bending to make the shoulder

fit the hole.
then her head(heart)
squishing and squeezing shrinking to fit
through the neck line.
the sweater is small
and cold,
yet she wears it.
it is all she has.
one day
she will grow tired
of tattered strings,
and she will cast off the clothes of oppression.

port authority by amy sciarretto midtown manhattan he may NOT come to save me i may NOT be his servant

oh and this has all the makings and ingredients of a romantic movie
date

NO
a tender twenty one year old carrot head was i "cherry" barked the husky loiterer on the stoop of the porno palace video store

damn.
i'm walking the wrong way i'm supposed to meet him on 41st stree and 8th avenue this is NOT a romance this is NOT the silver screen this is NOT dinner for two and slip of the tongue on a brownstone doorstep

The Man Looked Like My Grandfather

by Matthew W. Weatherbee

When I spoke with you Heroine made you forget

When I sat with you AZT made you forget

Until, like you, I rest in death I will not forget the backpack is heavy i am not a virgin; this is not my maiden voyage to new york city.

i lived here for two weeks, six months ago by now, just a change of clothes, some panties and my blowdryer could be a survival kit until i max out my visa.

he could be my lover and i could stay here with him and never go home.

it's just lust,
a feather boa cutting off my air supply hello.

finally.

later... didn't thrust a rose in my face we shoulda went to your favorite vegetarian resteraunt and ate atmospherically instead of fucking like a train wreck.

a train wreck.

Untitled by Janathan Faszczyk

I

Well let's hear it for all the heroes let's hear it for all the pride I've seen it and heard it all before but it helps to have you by my side

Not the sense of smell not the sense of touch not the sense of sight but the sense of taste tha't in my heart

Take away the flesh
take away the bone
take away the man
but leave his soul
'cause it's in demand

II

Well let's hear it for the dreadful Pirate Roberts and let's hear it for the prince's bride they've travelled all the way across the world but they've never ventured into my mind

He falls down to the ground see it coming closer it's so beautiful

He contemplates suicide looks to his side sees his new bride her virgin smile is both horizontal and vertical

Famous Quotes

"Poverty sucks." -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"Fallacies and facades." -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"Critical thinking is not just a criticism, it is critical to thinking itself." -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"Before you can spread the mayo, you got to have a sandwich."
-- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"Death is an imposition we all struggle to avoid." -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"It's close, but not far" -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

"Life is an asymptote." -- Matthew W. Weatherbee

THE ICONOCLAST brought to you by Andrea Chrisman, Anthony Simeone, Bruce Kramer & Amy Popp. Layout by Matthew W. Weatherbee. Illustrations by Ken Barber @ House Industries. Beer illustration collage by M. W. Writers o'rama: Jonathan Faszczyk, Jen Oliver, John Rothwell, Greg Pardlo, Bertram Redgrave, Nicole Nader, Tom Wright Jr., Susan Muaddi, Julie Kozempel, and Khary McGhee. Muses to the Writers: Shawn Sullivan, Valencia Jackson and Slappy Stink Head.

Please send all submissions, contributions, Ben and Jerry's, Gophered Scuppernon wine or chocolate of any kind (we especially like Godiva dark) to p00h@clam.rutgers.edu (the two O's are zeroes), or The Iconoclast, c/o P.O. Box 2133, Cinnaminson, NJ 08077. Remember we have a web page, so if you missed past issues, see us at <http://clam.rutgers.edu/~p00h/iconoclast/index.html>. (those two O's in p00h are also zeroes).